

"Waiting Around the Corner" There's a Treat in Store for You LEXINGTON CREAM FLOUR

Light, tasty biscuits, wholesome white bread, delicious, airy cakes are the invariable rule when Lexington Cream Flour is used. It improves the pastry of the best cooks—opens the way to new table delicacies of all kinds, and once used, becomes a real necessity in any kitchen.

Lexington Cream Flour is made from wheat grown on the limestone soil of the famous Blue Grass region of Kentucky, the finest wheat lands in the world. It is packed in attractive sanitary sacks of 12 and 24-pound size. It is much whiter, requires less shortening, and is more wholesome than ordinary flour.

One of the leaders among men who is at present Secretary of Agriculture, and who is available as a Democratic candidate for president of the United States is Edwin T. Meredith, Des Moines, Iowa. He is the one man who when asked what is the secret of business success in America today said:

Integrity, Industry, Imagination. Use imagination, he said, because only imagination will enable a man who has a little business to visualize the big one into which it can grow. Use industry, he advised, because the dreamer who only mentally locates his castle in Spain will never live in it. Use integrity, he said, because if men can't trust you, they won't dare support you in your ideas. An insight of what Meredith is and stands for it grouped in the following:

Statesman—Secretary of Agriculture, candidate for Governor of Iowa in 1916, candidate for U. S. Senate in 1914, proposed national public highways.

Publisher—Successful farming, Farm Boys' and Girls' Leader, building trade with farmers, merchandising advertising, rural schools bulletin, among ourselves, president Associated Advertising Clubs of the world.

Financier—Successful business man, director Federal Reserve Bank, Chicago district, stockholder in insurance companies, director Iowa Trust and Savings Bank, member board Excess Profits Advisers, recognized authority on banking and business.

Farmer—Born and reared on the farm, Owns Meredith's Pure Bred Stock Farm and other farms, publisher great farm papers.

Friend of Labor—Worked his way through college, employs 400 persons and never had any labor troubles, member United States Labor Commission sent to study conditions in Europe by President Wilson, member Industrial Conference called by the President.

Philanthropist—Lends money to boys and girls for stock raising, contributes heavily of time and money for religious and charitable enterprises, sends young men to college, nationally known for disposition to help others.

He is not a candidate, but is appreciative of his friends' loyalty.

When Secretary of Agriculture E. T. Meredith was informed that a Meredith-for-President Committee had been organized, he wrote the Committee Chairman, Judge Hubert Utterback, in part as follows:

"I am somewhat embarrassed, but I feel my friends know me well enough to believe that I am not so presumptuous as to feel that I am the one man in the United States above all others who should be nom-

WILL DISCUSS "MODERN UNREST"

D. H. McGibeny Selects Timely Topic for Chautauqua.

Well-Known Writer and Lecturer Has Wide Knowledge of Present-Day Conditions.

Donald H. McGibeny, novelist and traveler, comes with a broad background of experience to lecture at the

D. H. MCGIBENY.

Redpath Chautauqua on "The Modern Unrest."

This lecture is to a great extent a study of bolshevism and what it aims to accomplish.

Mr. McGibeny has given much time to the investigation of bolshevism, not only abroad but in America as well. His experiences in Washington in tracking down the national society of anarchists revealed important events of present-day history.

Besides being a lecturer of unusual ability, Mr. McGibeny has also received marked recognition as a writer. The Ladies' Home Journal is carrying each month a story by him, illustrated in color, and a new McGibeny novel, "Ballot Proof," has just been published.

inated for the Presidency. Many of my friends have pointed out that there might come a situation in the convention where the supporters of several candidates would wish to agree on some one person, and that my coming from Iowa, a Western agricultural State, having the friendship of many of the groups in our party, having been active in business activities of the country, having contact with, and I hope the confidence of the farmers, having the friendship of organized labor, etc., give me elements of strength that might lead to me being the person upon whom the supporters of several candidates would wish to unite.

"My wish is to serve whenever and whatever those interested in our party deem I can best serve. On this basis I am willing and anxious to do what can be done in the interest of the party and the country which the party wishes to serve. I know it is in that spirit that my friends are interesting themselves in my behalf, and I accept it as a great personal compliment and assure you of my appreciation."

A telegram on his proposed candidacy from Secretary Meredith to the Honorable Leo Stevens is also quoted:

"My feelings and desires are that the convention, when it assembles at San Francisco, should select as the candidate, after careful consideration, a man who is worthy and capable of filling the Presidency; who is full of sympathy with the people, and having their best interests at heart, and who, granted these qualifications, is most available as a candidate on account of his contracts and standing before the people. Any man selected by the Democrats of the nation under such circumstances could do nothing but accept the mandate of the convention and do all in his power to carry to the people the message of accomplishment by the Democratic party and the guarantee of faithful devotion to the best interests of the country in the event of his election."

Instinct of Birds.
The circumstance of the bluebirds being emboldened by the cold, suggests the fact that the fear of man, which now seems like an instinct in the birds, is evidently an acquired trait, and foreign to them in a state of primitive nature. Every gunner has observed, to his chagrin, how wild the pigeons become after a few days of firing among them; and, to his delight, how easy it is to approach near his game in new or unfrequented woods.—J. L. W.

Rival.
It seems strange that this English word which means a competitor of some sort should have come from the Latin word "rivalis," pertaining to a stream. But we can easily imagine that the neighbors who lived along the river bank and used the same source for water would sometimes quarrel about their rights and perhaps become enemies.

—And Love.
Like a great poet, Nature produces the greatest results with the simplest means. These are simply a sun, flowers, water and love. Of course, if the spectator be without the last, the whole will present but a pitiful appearance; and, in that case, the sun is merely so many miles in diameter, the trees are good for fuel, the flowers are classified by stamens, and the water is simply wet.—Heine.

Janitor.
The Romans always had a slave who stood by the door. Since the latter was called "janua," the term "janitor" came to be applied to him. Our janitors have a great many duties other than those connected with waiting upon the door; but this detail of Roman house management is crystallized in their name.
